

ICAR- National Research Centre on Pig, Guwahati organised DBT, GOI sponsored popular lecture series for college students

ICAR-National Research Centre on Pig, Guwahati organized popular lecture series from 21st - 23rd Dec, 2022, sponsored by Department of Biotechnology, Government of India. During the inaugural session on 21-12-2022, Dr. Vivek Kumar Gupta, Director ICAR-NRC on Pig delivered a session in Hindi on “Biotechnology and its application for development of diagnostics and vaccines for livestock”. On the same day, Dr Pranab Jyoti Das, Principal Scientist & In charge ITMU delivered a speech on “Youth Entrepreneurship Development” among the students. Students were exposed to various laboratories and interacted with scientists from different disciplines. The second lecture was delivered by Dr. Upasana Ray, Deputy head of the department of Infectious diseases and immunology, CSIR- IICB, Kolkata. Her lecture was on “Role of biotechnology in development of new generation vaccine against diseases. During the third session Dr. Sachin Kumar, Professor, IIT- Guwahati delivered a lecture on “Application of genomic tools for development of livestock disease diagnostics and vaccine”. The programme was conducted in hybrid mode, with offline and online participants. 255 students from Assam Down Town University and Daksin Kamrup college physically participated in the programme, in addition to hundreds of online participants from various educational institutions. The programme was coordinated by Dr Rajib Deb, Senior Scientist and co-coordinated by Dr Seema Rani Pegu, Senior Scientist and Dr Nitin M Attupuram, Scientist.

Day 1 (21st Dec, 2022) lecture was delivered by Dr Vivek Kumar Gupta, Director, ICAR-NRC on Pig in Hindi

Laboratory exposure and Interaction with Scientists at ICAR-NRC on Pig

Day-2 (22nd Dec, 2022) lecture was delivered by Dr Upasana Ray, CSIR-IICB, Kolkata

Day 3 (23rd Dec, 2022) lecture was delivered by Dr Sachin Kumar, IIT-Guwahati